

#11: What's in a word ...

Dictionaries and glossaries are an indispensable tool for translators.

How many of you remember leafing through giant hardcover volumes: bilingual dictionaries, monolingual dictionaries, thesauruses, specialized dictionaries, and technical glossaries?

Most dictionaries and glossaries we use are now located online, available either for free or at the cost of a monthly/annual membership fee. Some are easy to find, websites starting with dict. or those run by universities. Others are buried on company sites or linked through someone's blog post.

Here are a few favorites:

- proz.com/search
- dict.cc
- dict.leo.org
- dict.tu-chemnitz.de
- www.trans-k.co.uk/Glossar.html (DE<>EN)
- www.dewsbery.de/behoerden_a_offizielles.html (DE<>EN only)
- www.translationjournal.net/journal/00gloss.htm (a list of many resources)

Posted by Ulrike Anderson,
German to English ST

Discover and learn with Gengo's unique resources for beginner translators.

Other Lessons

To talk about the lesson or ask questions, join our discussion in the Translator Forums.